

Jennifer Ehle

Literature Teacher

Education

B.A. in English, University of Detroit Mercy

M.Ed. in Education, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor

Endorsements

Professional Certificate: Teaching Self-contained, Grades K-6

Professional Certificate: Teaching Language Arts, 6-8

Teaching Experience

Shrine High Catholic High School and Academy, English & Literature 2003-2008

St. Anthony's School, Wisconsin 2008-2009

Catapult Learning Centers, Wisconsin 2009-2010

Shrine Academy, Literature 2010-currently

Extracurricular Activities

Shrine Academy Honors Society Moderator

Personal Statement

When I was in grade school my favorite teacher was my 4th grade teacher, Mrs. Devers. She had a passion for literacy. In the first few weeks in language arts groups we spent part of our time writing and editing stories, and the other part reading and discussing short stories. The day concluded with Mrs. Devers's famous read alouds which grabbed the interests of the most struggling of students. She taught us in order to be good writers, we had to learn to be good readers. This foundation—that reading and writing go hand-in-hand—is vital to academic success. My diverse teaching background lends itself to guiding all types of students on their literacy journey. I feel blessed to be following in Mrs. Devers's footsteps.

